- Are you regretting not being successful in the past because you know that if you had more it, your present life would be better?
- How do you understand the quote by Suz Tan :
Can you imagine what I would do if I could do all I can?

THE IF GENERATION

Nowadays, many people have issues with appreciating what they have; it is always the matter of 'If I were richer...', 'If I were younger...', 'If I were him...' etc. I don't have a problem with the fact that we want more from our lives; what annoys me is the fact that we keep saying what we would do 'if' ...

When I was younger, I thought that if my parents had been richer I could have been more fortunate with my life. I was losing my time on thinking that if I had been born in the family of my cousin, I would have enjoyed private tennis lessons, skiing holidays in Austria or expensive, fashionable clothes. What I didn't take into consideration back then was the fact that I didn't really like sport, I absolutely hated skiing and expensive clothes often covered the lack of personality. In other words, I was jealous of the things that I didn't want in reality.

Nowadays I keep finding myself the new 'ifs' that can successfully keep me away from being happy. I think that if I had more time, I would start going to the gym; if I had more money, I would eat healthy etc. Result? An overweight 30-year-old woman, always complaining about how difficult life is.

But the problem of 'ifs' doesn't finish here. We tend to overuse the 1st conditional in quite straightforward situations. 'I'll visit you if I have time' usually means 'I won't visit you, I'm busy' or 'I will lend you the money if I can' equals: 'I will not lend you the money, don't put me in an uncomfortable situation'. Why do we choose to send confusing messages when we can simply say what we think? We have to be not only politically correct anymore, we must be socially correct too.

First or second conditional? = if... clauses

If we played a guitar, we would rock this world!

Yeeeee dude!
